A boy was on his way to school.

"Where are you going, son?" An old man standing on the road side, intruded. He was short, had a big forehead and a bigger beard!

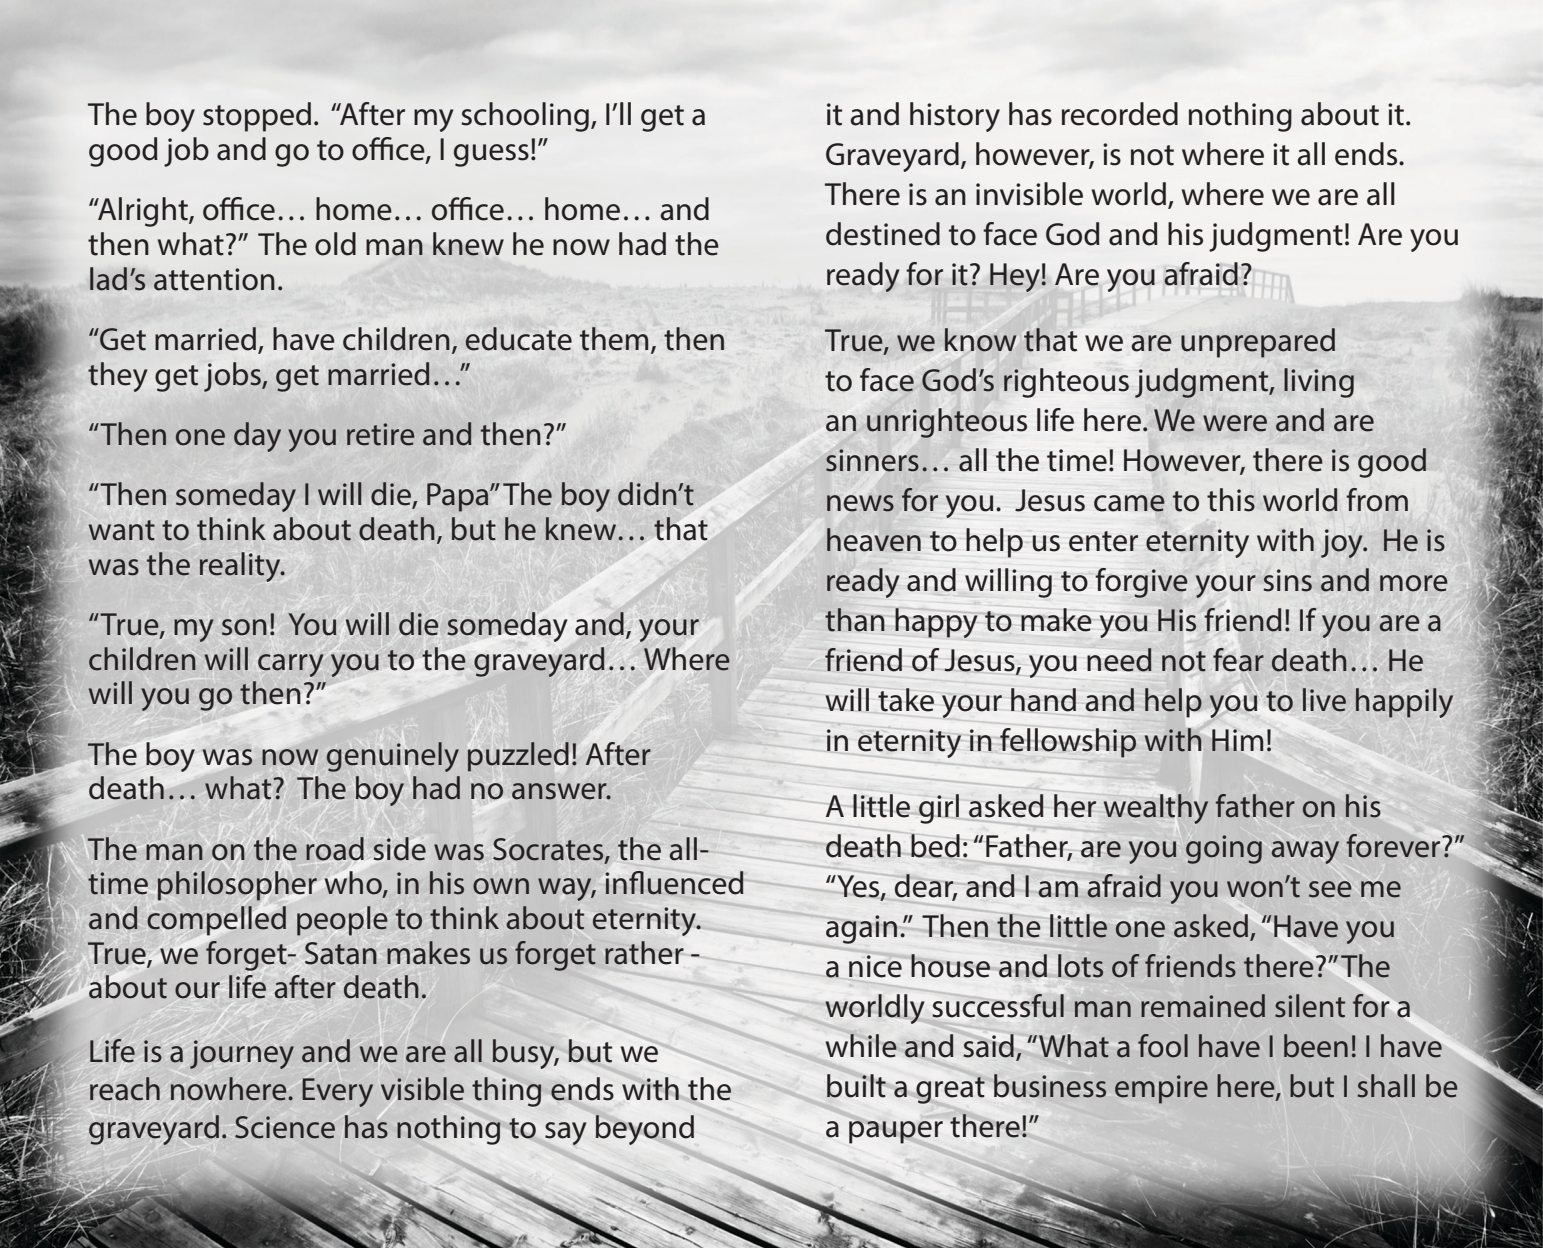

"On my way to school, Papa!" the boy replied casually.

"What, after that?" the man asked again...

"Back home, of course, what else?" the boy retorted. He didn't even bother to look up!

As the boy continued walking, the man kept talking: "Back and forth between school and home ... Well, some day you'll finish school, what then," the man insisted.

The boy stopped. "After my schooling, I'll get a good job and go to office, I guess!"

"Alright, office... home... office... home... and then what?" The old man knew he now had the lad's attention.

"Get married, have children, educate them, then they get jobs, get married..."

"Then one day you retire and then?"

"Then someday I will die, Papa" The boy didn't want to think about death, but he knew... that was the reality.

"True, my son! You will die someday and, your children will carry you to the graveyard... Where will you go then?"

The boy was now genuinely puzzled! After death... what? The boy had no answer.

The man on the road side was Socrates, the all-time philosopher who, in his own way, influenced and compelled people to think about eternity. True, we forget- Satan makes us forget rather - about our life after death.

Life is a journey and we are all busy, but we reach nowhere. Every visible thing ends with the graveyard. Science has nothing to say beyond it and history has recorded nothing about it. Graveyard, however, is not where it all ends. There is an invisible world, where we are all destined to face God and his judgment! Are you ready for it? Hey! Are you afraid?

True, we know that we are unprepared to face God's righteous judgment, living an unrighteous life here. We were and are sinners... all the time! However, there is good news for you. Jesus came to this world from heaven to help us enter eternity with joy. He is ready and willing to forgive your sins and more than happy to make you His friend! If you are a friend of Jesus, you need not fear death... He will take your hand and help you to live happily in eternity in fellowship with Him!

A little girl asked her wealthy father on his death bed: "Father, are you going away forever?" "Yes, dear, and I am afraid you won't see me again." Then the little one asked, "Have you a nice house and lots of friends there?" The worldly successful man remained silent for a while and said, "What a fool have I been! I have built a great business empire here, but I shall be a pauper there!"
